Dear Parent /Carer

As part of the PSCH curriculum students are taught about a variety of personal, social, cultural and health related modules, as part of this they will consider health and wellbeing, relationships and fundamental British values.

As part of this, year 11 students will have a 25 minute session each week during mentor time throughout the year. The students will study a range of topics including healthy lifestyles, careers, relationships, mental health and first aid.

To help deliver some parts of the modules, organisation and outside companies will be invited into school some of which include SEXions from Kings Mill Hospital and an educational theatre company called Pintsize. The key objective of these sessions is to educate our students on a range of issues and topics that they will face in both young and adult life.

All topics will be delivered and studied in a controlled and professional manner but if you should have any concern about the contents of these topics and modules please do not hesitate to contact me to discuss the matter. In addition to this a summary of lessons and their objectives will be available on a termly basis on the school's website.

Yours faithfully

A Bleasdale
